Bonner Defends Himself

VICTORIA (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner spoke for more than an hour in the British Columbia legislature Tuesday in defence of his handling of the case surrounding former Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers.

The case saw Sommers convicted on charges of bribery and conspiracy. He now is appealing a five-year sentence.

Mr. Bonner was answering criticism voiced in the legislature Monday by Liberal MLA George Gregor of Victoria.

Mr. Bonner, one of four speakers Tuesday, defended his decision to turn the Sommers case over to the RCMP in 1956, rather than order a judicial inquiry.

He said that when the late Gordon Sloan was named as a commissioner to investigate the allegations against Mr. Sommers, it had not been established in the department that "this was a criminal matter."

DEFENDS "PRINCIPLES"

"Looking back on the entire matter, I would say that important principles were considered and adhered to, notwithstanding allegations of delay and everything else which the opposition has stated," he said.

The Attorney-General also praised the government's new university student-aid program and said the budget shows the province is flourishing.

But there was some criticism of the budget from Social Credit back benches.

Frank Richter (SC — Similkameen) was disappointed in road work in his area and called for establishment of vocational schools in the interior and an increase in the silicosis pension. He also urged the government to study RCMP policing of the province under contract, suggesting the province got a bad deal when it dissolved the old provincial police force. The RCMP was providing less service at higher cost, he said.

John Squire (CCF — Alberni) demanded an upward revision of minimum wage rates and an overhaul of the workmen's compensation board. He also called on the government to announce a firm power policy.

SEEKS ROAD MONEY

Tom Bate (SC — Vancouver — Point Grey) said there should be more money for roads in the Vancouver area and the provincial government should share in cost of a needed breakwater there. He also suggested the government make car insurance compulsory before a provincial licence to drive is issued.

Mr. Bate caused an uproar among the CCF benches when he declared that it was time there were some "responsible men" at the head of the some of the labor unions in the province.

The debate will continue today with William Speare (SC — Cariboo) leading off. The house may also hear Recreation and Conservation Minister Earl Westwood.

Gagliardi Sees One World In Nuclear Age

VICTORIA (CP) — Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi told a meeting of the Kiwanis club here he expects a new nuclear age to transform current transportation methods in the world.

"I can see the time, maybe five years, when you or I will be picked up anywhere in Vancouver and dropped anywhere in Victoria by nuclear power," he said.

"Modern development has 'shrunk' the world to a point where we have to get along together."

Speaking of the threat by the CPR to discontinue a winter ferry service between Vancouver and Victoria, the minister said:

"I hope this won't be the case. I hope there will be enough protests from the city to keep the ferries running, at least until the province can get its own service into operation . . ."

Bomb "Tip" Probed

SAANICH (CP) — Detectives here are investigating a telephone call which Tuesday morning spurred a hunt for a bomb in Colquhoun Junior High school. Police said they received the call at 8:34 a.m. The voice refused to give a name.

Grower Marketing Curbs Rapped By Frank Richter

VICTORIA (CP) — An Okanagan Social Credit member who urged MacPhee remain to be seen, but appointment of a royal commission investigation of the B.C. tree fruits industry has told the Legislature he is opposed to any further marketing restrictions on growers.

Frank Richter, who represents Similkameen and operates a ranch at Penticton, said benefits from the report turned in by tree

But he said the CCF party doesn't think the cost is beyond the country's capacity "and we are quite prepared to tell the gov-

IWA Claim One-Sided Police Role

GRAND FALLS, Nfld. (CP) — The RCMP's role in the strike of 1,200 Newfoundland loggers commanded most of the attention today as the bitter dispute entered its 42nd day.

Two incidents since Saturday resulted in charges by union leaders that the RCMP was taking sides. One involved a report that an RCMP patrol car sideswiped women pickets, the other that they carried machine-guns in rounding up striking loggers after two woods camps had been smashed.

H. Landon Ladd Canadian president of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA), said Tuesday the RCMP is "being used as an arm of the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company." The loggers, who went on strike at the company Dec. 31

Organist Wins Top Honors At Lambeth College

R. H. Bell, of Belleville, Ontario, who is currently studying the organ at Lambeth College, London, on a scholarship, has been successful in obtaining the degree of Associate of the Royal College of Organists.

Reports indicate that it is somewhat remarkable for a student to obtain this degree at the first attempt.

Mr. Bell also has won the "Limpus" prize for highest test marks at the organ which includes sight reading, transposition and score reading. Sir Wilfrid George's Chapel, Windsor, who teaches the better students at Windsor, stated he was not a bit surprised that Mr. Bell had won the "Limpus," as he deserved it.

Mr. Bell, who will return to Canada in the early summer, has received offers from Australia, New Zealand and the United States. Also a tentative offer of a position at the University of Tokyo, Japan, has been made to him.

Mrs. Bell, who, with her family, has been with Mr. Bell in London, is the former Joan Campbell, daughter of J. K. Campbell, Abbott St., Kelowna. Mr. Bell is on leave of absence from his position as organist at St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville.

Processors Ask Protection Tariff

VICTORIA (CP) — The Canadian Food Processors' Association decided at its convention here to ask Finance Minister Fleming for an import tariff on United States frozen fruits and vegetables.

Delegates said Canada's 50,000 commercial growers and their investments need protection from surpluses on the Canadian market.

COINWORD JACKPOT HITS $570 AS HUNDREDS VIE FOR PRIZE

Interest is mounting in The Daily Courier's "Coinword" contest. So much so, that one of the sponsoring advertisers dropped into the office yesterday to watch the "Coinword" editor pore over hundreds of entries in last week's contest, but he too was disappointed when no winner was declared.

Results: the jackpot now stands at $570 provided a sales slip from one of the sponsoring merchants is enclosed in this week's entry. If no sales slip is enclosed, the prize will be $285.

A new entry form appears on Page 6 of today's Courier.

'Mother of the Navy' Dies — Service Rites

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — Maude Leslie, a frail, 72-year-old spinster who was a "mother" to many seamen during the war, was to be buried today with naval honors.

She died in a Hamilton nursing home.

Seamen here called her the "Mother of the Navy" World War and the years that followed. Miss Leslie was a familiar figure around HMCS Star, the Naval establishment here and in the railway stations, where she went whenever a draft of sailors left Hamilton. Few of the boys knew much about her. But she gave them cigarettes, candy, kindly words of goodbye, or sound advice.

HMCS Star will conduct the funeral today with two officers, two non-commissioned officers and two ratings acting as pallbearers.

Miss Leslie, the daughter of a sea captain who was lost at sea, came here 55 years ago from Virginia. For many years she lived alone.

Alas! B.C. Can't Convince Nikita

VICTORIA (CP) — The opinion of Russia's Premier Khrushchev has been put before British Columbians anxious for a change in regulations governing the sale of vodka in B.C.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner was commenting in the legislature on requests for a change in the regulations. Vodka now must be ordered by the case through a government liquor outlet and is not for sale off the shelves.

"I'll say this about vodka," Mr. Bonner remarked, "Khrushchev thinks very little of it and he must be acknowledged as an authority on the subject."

Frost Gives 2,500 Children Holiday

QUESNEL (CP) About 2,500 school children in District 28 in the North Cariboo are enjoying a holiday from classes today because of 2-10th of a degree of frost. All schools in the district close automatically when the thermometer dips lower than 25 degrees below zero. The official reading at Quesnel Airport was 25.2 below this morning.

Distress Signal Report Erroneous

HALIFAX (CP) — A report that a plane heard a distress signal in the area where the Icelandic trawler Jull disappeared Saturday has proved erroneous, ICAF rescue headquarters said today. Garbled communications were blamed for the error. A United States military air transport plane bound from Iceland to Newfoundland asked permission to search the area at low altitude while en route but no distress call was heard, the ICAF said. The plane's crew reported they saw nothing of the Jull and her 31 men. (See main story this page).

Ike To Join Queen In Seaway Opening

OTTAWA (CP) — President Eisenhower will come to Canada June 26 to join the Queen in opening ceremonies of the St. Lawrence Seaway at Montreal, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced today. He informed the Commons that President and Mrs. Eisenhower will join the Queen and Prince Philip on the royal yacht Britannia for the seaway opening ceremony.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Helen Nethercott of Kitchener, president of the Ontario Ladies Basketball Association, said today she favors barring Shirley Topley, 24-year-old player with Vancouver Oilers senior A women's basketball team, as an amateur. The Ontario association filed a protest with the Canadian Women's Basketball Association after Miss Topley returned to Vancouver Sunday night from a three-month exhibition tour with a United States all-star team. "All I know is what I hear via the grapevine," Miss Nethercott said, "I heard Shirley was getting $300 a month while on tour."

Ohio Floods Force 1,500 Persons To Leave Homes

(COMPILED FROM DISPATCHES)

Violent weather again is playing havoc with North American communications, shipping, highway traffic and health facilities.

Associated and Canadian Press reports indicate:

1. Heavy rainfall has swollen Ohio rivers again imperilling cities and towns, particularly Fremont.
2. Atlantic Seaboard search and rescue services are working around the clock to find distressed vessels.
3. St. Louis tornado dead have mounted to 21.
4. Heavy snowfall has tied up Eastern Canadian highways and Toronto General Hospital says it can't take any more accident cases.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — New floods today threatened Ohio's northern cities for the second time in less than a month. In Fremont, between 1,200 and 1,500 persons have been forced from their homes by the two floods.

But statewide, the situation doesn't seem to be as critical as it was last month. Then, thousands were evacuated in all sections of Ohio as rain-swollen rivers went on a rampage.

The new floods hit chiefly in northern Ohio where rainfall Tuesday amounted to three inches in places.

RIVER FLOODS FREMONT
The Sandusky River passed the 17-foot mark early today—four feet above flood stage—and swept into 25 blocks of downtown Fremont. It is expected to crest this morning at 18.4 feet, or 1.2 feet over the January mark.

Heavy cakes of ice flowed toward the State Street bridge in the centre of Fremont. If they pile up there, it's feared that a large section of the city of 15,000 people will be turned into a deep lake.

At Findlay, with a population of 24,000, the Blanchard River crested late Tuesday night at more than nine feet above flood stage and about a foot higher than the January mark. Approximately quarter of the city was covered with water. Civil defence officials said about 200 persons are known to have evacuated and that possibly 100 more also fled their homes.

Findlay, Van Wert and the village of Ottawa and Putnam County, in which Ottawa is situated, have been declared emergency areas.

INDIANA THREATENED

In Indiana, swiftly rising waters and tons of ice threatened the northern part of the state today.

The worst floods in 10 years sent hundreds of families from their homes in the upper Wabash River Valley and closed roads throughout the area.

Meanwhile, sub-freezing temperatures appeared today to have ended the threat of new floods in northwestern Pennsylvania communities hit hard last month.

Snow Adds Chaos To Eastern Roads

Snow fell steadily Tuesday night and early today over most of Eastern Canada, helping still more chaos on icy, slush-choked streets and highways.

Montreal appeared to be the hardest-hit major centre at midnight.

At Toronto, where streets were a mess, snow was falling this morning. Northwestern General Hospital told police at 8 p.m. it couldn't handle any more traffic accident cases.

Planes were grounded at Montreal and Toronto. Trains and buses ran behind schedule.

Generally, Western Canada had it clear and cold. Winnipeg and Brandon had overnight lows of 20 below zero. The mercury fell 35 below at Churchill, Edmonton, in line for some moderation, but a 15 below.

This Planet's Unfinished Business Demands Attention

"Where does fantasy end and reality begin?" The United States House of Representatives special committee on astronautics and space exploration pauses at one point in its official report to ask that question; and the ordinary reader is bound to echo it. For the things the committee predicts in the relatively near future—on the testimony of reputable scientists, military leaders and businessmen—are breath-taking. They include manned satellites; bases on the moon; and exploratory probes to Mars and Venus, followed by human landings on these planets.

Whether all these things will come to pass no one can say, but there is little doubt that many of them can be achieved fairly rapidly, given the necessary concentration of money and effort. And there is the rub. Some witnesses before the committee suggested hopefully that an adequate space program would cost the United States $1 to $2 billion a year; but it is likely that the real costs would be very much higher. Significantly, one expert stated that the exploration of space would require the development of an astronautics industry with more invested capital and more men employed than the present day automobile industry.

The predictions and recommendations given to the committee relate primarily, of course, to the United States. Soviet Russia, however, is already making a gigantic effort in the same field, and it is likely that France and possibly Britain will seek to make their own contributions, if only for reasons of prestige. Within the next decade, in fact, the exploration of space may become a pre-occupation of all the Great Powers.

This is a prospect to stir the imagination. But can the human race really afford this vast diversion of money, materials, labor and scientific talent from its earthly problems? The stars may beckon to the adventurous, but much of our planet's land surface and all its ocean depths remain unexplored, their potentialities only guessed. It is intriguing to think of a huge industry established to manufacture satellites and moon rockets, but vast areas of the globe still lack adequate roads and railways.

There is something a bit ironic, too, in the spectacle of great scientific minds busy devising means to enable men to survive in space, while at least a billion people are finding it hard to survive on earth, in a daily environment of hunger, squalor and preventable disease. Quite possibly the money spent on a moon base, an artificial home for a few daring adventurers, might provide homes for most of the world's 3,000,000 refugees. Surely there is some tidying up to do here before we take off for the moon.

Enthusiasts often compare these proposed ventures into space with the voyages of Columbus, Captain Cook and other terrestrial explorers. But there is a fundamental difference. The discovery of the Americas and Australia opened vast new regions to settlement and development; most of mankind benefited directly or indirectly. But no such dividend can be expected from journeys to the moon and the planets.

Astronomers are generally agreed that these bodies are entirely uninhabitable by human beings, or just barely habitable under artificial conditions. Their exploration and "colonization" will simply be an elaborate scientific stunt, producing little of value to mankind, and liable to end in costly and tragic failure. By contrast most of the tasks before us here on earth are well within the compass of present-day knowledge and capacity, given the will.

It is perhaps fortunate that Canada's limited population and wealth debar her from joining the Great Powers in the race for space. This should enable us to devote more attention to unfinished business on our own planet.

SPLIT PERSONALITY

OTTAWA REPORT

"Blue Book" Is A "Must"

By PATRICK NICHOLSON

Where did your money go last year, all $5,087,411.01 which was extracted from you in taxes by the federal government?

That sounds like a lot of money, even when divided between 17,000,000 Canadians. And it is plenty. It amounts to about $1.196 for the average family.

If you want the answer to that question, the long and detailed but, believe me, intensely fascinating answer, you can get it by sending $5 to the Queen's Printer in Ottawa, and he will mail you, postage free, the two volumes of "Public Accounts of Canada for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1958."

Volume Two deals shortly, too shortly, with crown companies. But volume one is quite a book. Its 1,050 pages tell you just how each government department did its spending. It gives the name and salary of every one of your employees in the civil service who was paid at the rate of $5,000 a year or more; it tells you how much was paid to each Senator and M.P., and incidentally reveals their degree of absenteeism from sittings of parliament, which costs them a deduction of $60 for each day of absence in excess of 21 in the year, except in case of illness or public business elsewhere.

SIZE OF THAT CONTRACT

This big volume also gives the name of each contractor or supplier catering to the government, and the amount paid in every case involving more than $10,000; so you can learn how much your neighbor was paid when his farm was expropriated to make the airport. And it tells you what fees, in excess of $500, were paid to which lawyers, doctors and others in the professions for their services.

It reveals, for example, that the United Towing and Salvage Co. Ltd. of Port Arthur was paid $75,000 for "breaking ice in Thunder Bay; transporting light-keepers and their assistants, wives, families and effects to and from their stations etc." It explains that one Rene Levesque was paid $2,000 compensation for an injury incurred when he was helping a member of the RCMP to make an arrest at Simo Lake, P.Q., a surprising 25 years ago.

And it lists the scale of pay and allowances for all uniformed employees, from a trumpeter in the Mounties (pay $2,340 per year) to the Deputy Commander in Chief of the North American Air Defence Command ($17,000 per year).

As two out of three Ottawa fanatics either work for the government, or are concerned in sundry payments or fees for goods or services rendered to the government, you will appreciate why this "Blue Book" is required reading in nearly every Ottawa home—if a copy can be obtained. Quite apart from the listing of the "order of precedence" of civil servants according to their rate of pay, which also has some important, this publication caters to the widespread human failing of curiosity about what the neighbors earn or otherwise receive.

It is encouraging to note that economies have already been effected in some fields by the new Conservative government. A Prime Minister John Diefenbaker himself sets a good example, through a reduction of about $1,000 in the annual cost of his official residence. This saving, as compared to the previous year when the residence was occupied by former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, is made up of $277 less spent on hired help and $118 less spent on food.

Since the Tories took over the business of government, there have also been foreseeable savings in the cost of deodorizing government offices in Ottawa ($4,607 compared to $10,818 in the previous year) and in the expense of vermin control (slashed from $21,962 in the previous year to $5,440 under the Tories).

SCENE IN PASSING

BY "WAYFARER"

We have never regarded Dr. Brock Chisholm as a man asking either mental balance or brain-power. Therefore in reading comments made by him recently in connection with biological poisons, we are prepared to accept his description of their annihilating power, without question.

And when the British inventor or radar, Sir Robert Watson Watt, gives basically the same description of these poisons, all doubt is completely removed. To consider that eight ounces of one of these substances (apparently there is more than one) could in theory destroy all life in the world, is a particularly horrifying thought.

It has been pointed out by Dr. Chisholm that due to distribution limitations, the theory of complete annihilation would not easily be developed into fact, but nevertheless, extensive areas could be "seeded" by air-borne poison with devastating effect.

With nuclear warfare already possible and this other terrifying menace now added to the perils of the world, it would not seem unlikely that our personal planet might someday achieve the barren and burned out look of the craters of the moon. There is, of course, the standard argument that "nerve" gases were perfected but never used in World War Two, simply because none of the antagonists dared to use them—

Without A Newspaper

What happens to a city when its daily newspapers stop publishing was graphically demonstrated recently in New York City.

New Yorkers first found themselves in what amounted to a news vacuum. Radio and television stations made a frantic effort to keep citizens informed about what was happening in the city, the country and the world. But they failed, because they could not handle the volume, they could not provide a lasting record, and people could not take time to listen or watch throughout the day for the news as it was presented. Indeed, research agencies that keep a regular check on broadcast audiences reported that fewer people were tuning in their sets during the newspaper strike, a curious occurrence which they found difficult to explain.

Outside newspapers that arrived in New York were quickly grabbed, and often were resold for more than the original purchase price.

Business in New York suffered a tremendous blow. One group of stores estimated they lost better than $25 million worth of business because they could not properly advertise their goods—and this was during the pre-Christmas buying rush. Many stores actually lost money because their sales volume was not enough to cover costs, a serious blow to them because the normal high volume of seasonal buying is expected to tide many businesses over slack periods during the year.

The merchants tried every other possible means of advertising their wares, from billboards to direct mail, but failed to get the heavy response needed to justify their expenditure. By Christmas Eve, most of them estimated they had lost upward of 20 per cent of their expected business. The Newspaper Information Committee canvassed retailers and advertising executives and got the answer that the strike proved that newspapers were vital to business. The committee called the strike the costliest media test in history.

VAST STEEL EMPIRE

No Effort Made To Force Krupp Stick To Agreement

By HERB ALTSCHULL

BONN (AP)—At the end of the war Alfred Krupp was sent to jail as a war criminal. Later the Allies got him to sign an agreement to abandon his exand steel businesses by Jan. 31, 1959.

That deadline has passed, and no one has made any effort to force the former munitions maker to stick to the agreement.

The Western world has undergone some changes since 1951, when Krupp left prison.

No longer do Washington, London and Paris regard it necessary to keep a watch on the Ruhr as a safeguard against the revival of German military might.

Instead, the Western powers are urging the Germans to step up their war production as a barrier to potential Communist aggression.

One of these industrial concentrations was the Krupp empire, which Adolf Hitler used to build his enormous war machine.

As one key step they wanted to break up the big concentrations of industry, the cartels, which Adolf Hitler used to build his enormous war machine.

Alfred Krupp's father, ran the industrial empire through nearly all of the war. Then he suffered a stroke and his son, who took over as head of the business, was ordered to jail for war crimes despite his protests of innocence.

Alfred Krupp today is one of the wealthiest men in the world. The Krupp industrial organization does an annual business of $900,000,000.

RULE INEQUITABLE
Krupp argues that the Allies imposed rules on him that were not laid down for other industrialists. The West German government of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer agrees, and backs Krupp's resistance to the divestment order.

Krupp, in asking for a one-year extension, obviously hopes that after another year the order will be a dead issue.

The terms of the agreement provide that changes must be approved by a committee of six, composed of three representatives from West Germany and one each from Britain, France and the United States.

Some officials among the three Western Allies are less than enthusiastic about accommodating Krupp, but they concede privately there really isn't anything they can do about it.

Eventually the commission is expected to grant the year's extension or revoke the divestment order altogether. The latter is the likelier.

Council Endorses Welfare Increase

Endorsement in principle was given by city council Monday night to an appeal from the Community Chest and Council of Greater Vancouver for support to a province-wide application for increases in social assistance rates.

Certain recommendations already have been made to Victoria by the Vancouver group, and support for these is coming in from all sections of the province.

At Monday night's council meeting, Ald. Dennis Crookes was directed to confer with Thomas Hamilton, the city's social welfare administrator, so that a letter of support may be drafted and forwarded to the Greater Vancouver Community Chest.

The city council has received from the Greater Vancouver body, a 112-page report which took 18 months of intensive inquiring to compile and which contains there are inadequacies in the allowances, ranging from 21 per cent to 55 per cent below the minimum requirements for bare subsistence.

The report was based mainly on findings in the metropolitan area but the originators of the report feel that the situation is similar in all parts of the province.

In its covering letter, the Community Chest and Council of Greater Vancouver points out that under the new cost sharing agreement for social assistance, the federal government provides 50 per cent, the provincial government 40 per cent and municipalities the remaining 10 per cent.

The city council has received from the Greater Vancouver body, a 112-page report which took 18 months of intensive inquiring to compile and which contains there are inadequacies in the allowances, ranging from 21 per cent to 55 per cent below the minimum requirements for bare subsistence.

The report was based mainly on findings in the metropolitan area but the originators of the report feel that the situation is similar in all parts of the province.

In its covering letter, the Community Chest and Council of Greater Vancouver points out that under the new cost sharing agreement for social assistance, the federal government provides 50 per cent, the provincial government 40 per cent and municipalities the remaining 10 per cent.

At Monday night's council meeting, Ald. Dennis Crookes was directed to confer with Thomas Hamilton, the city's social welfare administrator, so that a letter of support may be drafted and forwarded to the Greater Vancouver Community Chest.

Knights Assist In Revelstoke Charter Night

A large contingent of Kelowna Knights of Columbus participated in charter presentation ceremonies at Revelstoke during the weekend when the twenty-fourth council in British Columbia was officially instituted.

The Kelowna contingent was headed by J. W. Bedford, grand knight of Father Pandosy Council No. 2558, and L. W. Schlosser, deputy grand knight. Mr. Bedford was one of the main speakers at the charter presentation banquet Sunday night.

The Revelstoke council, officially known now as the St. Francis of Assisi Council No. 4712, was sponsored and fostered by the Kelowna council.

Among dignitaries at the wind-up banquet Sunday night was Most Rev. W. E. Doyle, DD, Bishop of Nelson; James V. Hughes, Vancouver, a member of the K of C supreme board of directors; M. J. Griffin, Victoria, state deputy; G. A. Bregoliss of Kamloops, district deputy for the Okanagan; James Gagnon, district deputy for the West Kootenays; Mayor Walter Hardman of Revelstoke, and Mrs. Hardman, and Mrs. A. W. Lundell of Revelstoke, representing her husband, who is the MLA for the Revelstoke area and was attending legislative sessions at Victoria.

Enroute home Sunday night, five cars of Kelowna Knights and their wives were delayed over two hours when a freight train stalled at a crossing three miles outside of Revelstoke.

George Hume Given Recognition For 22 Years Service On Library Board

In recognition of his long and valued service as treasurer on the board of management of the Okanagan Regional Library, George C. Hume has been presented with a silver salver.

Presentation was made by five members of the board at the Kelowna hospital where Mr. Hume is a patient.

Mr. Hume, who also served many years as a Glenmore trustee on the school board, had spent 22 years on the library board as treasurer.

He was first elected by the Glenmore municipality in 1935 and took office as treasurer at the inaugural meeting of the library board in 1936. He served in that capacity until ill health forced him to resign at the end of 1958.

Subscribers to the recognition gift included many members of the board, both past and present, as well as friends in the municipalities of Glenmore and Sumnerland.

Ready To Discuss Knox Park Road

S. M. Simpson Ltd., which has ownership to large parcels of land on the southern slopes and the top of Knox Mountain, has advised city council it is willing to co-operate with the city in locating a road through that part of the mountain property that is retained by the city for park purposes.

The company letter offered to meet with council and city hall staff at any time. Due to weather conditions, however, city council has decided to put off any survey and talks until at least a month.

Four Applicants Given Approval

City council Monday night approved four applications for trade licences. They were for: Martin Howbold, 439 Morrison Ave., insurance agent; Barry Baicalupo, Vernon, vacuum cleaner agent; Kelowna Motors, 1630 Water St., retail trader in boats, motors and trailers; and Mrs. Ruby R. Casner, 732 Morrison Ave., catering service.

FINAL READING
Final reading was given by city council Monday night to Bylaw 2030 which authorizes the expenditure of $23,400, proceeds in sale of tax sale properties, to purchase the necessary materials and chase the necessary materials and for paying for the installation of the new sewer lines.

Down Hill Run's Moguls Will Make Skiers Happy

By GEORGE INGLIS
(Courier Sports Editor)

This weekend's ski meet at Black Knight Mountain Ski Bowl should present some surprises for visiting skiers.

Skiers who have never visited the local hill will no doubt be amazed when they see the facilities, knowing that they are all the work of volunteer labor, and those who have skied here before will be thrilled at the downhill run, which was only started two years ago, and completed last fall. The hill has some splendid "moguls", which are contours, not big shots, in skiing.

At the time of the last meet here, a jumping contest, there was no downhill run, other than uncharted runs through the woods, but the one competitors will be using this weekend is about as interesting a piece of ski hill as will be found anywhere in the Pacific north-west.

With 3,400 people enjoying the facilities of the hill over these winter weekends, it's practically impossible to estimate how many will turn out to watch the two days of competition by some of the province's finest skiers—an unprecedented 64 entries have been received to date. The club are making preparations to handle a record crowd, however, planning the approach to keep traffic moving and supplying both upper and lower parking lots.

The chalet, which was hard pressed to turn out coffee and doughnuts the last time there was a ski meet up the hill, is now under the capable hands of Mesdames Trevor Pickering and Vern Ahrens, and is capable of handling quite a crowd with considerably more scope in menu. The interior of the chalet itself has been improved to provide spectator comfort.

THE NEWS FROM CENTENNIAL HALL IS ALL GOOD. Following the early period of organization, the activities there have started to buzz, with Boy Scout business, gymnastic classes, boxing classes and other activities filling the hall every moment. Most recent plan is a class for young men, which should be a popular move in Kelowna.

The recreation commission met last night with reps from the boxing club and the girls' gym classes to iron out the possibility of forming a committee to co-ordinate the activities in the hall, and organize an administrative body to take the chores of management off the shoulders of the persons actively engaged in coaching or instructing the various activities.

Boxing is enjoying an unprecedented run of interest, with close to 150 boys turning out last Monday night for the workout. John Vigar, George Daft and Ron Coull are three of the fellows doing the instructing, with Staff Sergeant W. B. Kelly Irving and the magistrate, Donald White, still taking an active interest in the activities.

The girls' classes, under Mrs. Hellevi Cooper, have been enjoying record attendance, and she has called in a number of her high-level pupils from the adult night class she teaches on Wednesday at the high school, to plan a further program. As soon as the unseasonable white stuff disappears from the ground, and the footing in City Park is good, she plans to move out of doors with some of her classes, giving more room and possibility of handling larger groups more successfully.

The next step will probably be something for the portly old young men who pound typewriters and add figures—yes, figures.

LOCAL SOCCER ENTHUSIASTS ARE KICKING AROUND THE IDEA of forming a second Kelowna team this spring, to balance out the league and take the place of the second Revelstoke club, the Juventus. Last fall schedule took quite a beating from the Juventus forfeiting games and failing to appear, as well as proving to be hard to handle on the field, so the soccer boys are trying to east around for an answer.

It wouldn't be the first time Kelowna has had two clubs, and there are certainly sufficient talented players around to staff two clubs—but the problem would probably be coaching. Last year, the Hotspurs had a great deal of trouble until they pulled Bob McKinsty back to the mentor's seat, and the new club might run into the same problem, if and when they form.

Soccer is experiencing a revival in player interest, if not in fan interest, with Vernon, Kamloops, Revelstoke, Penticton, Lumby and Kelowna all in the picture, and no one club showing any promise of walking off with all the silver.

BOOSTER BITS

At two minutes and 11 seconds past eight o'clock on Friday, Feb. 6, a resounding cheer echoed through the Memorial Arena.

Through 47 games the big policeman of the blue line had been trying to push the puck into the net, but although coming close, had been unable to squeeze it in. However, Friday night big Andy McCallum was not to be denied and his shot had Ken Kuntz in the Kamloops nets beaten all the way.

The fans reacted with a terrific cheer, and it was as if should be, for no one works harder or gives more of himself, game after game, than the players, too, fell on him with their congratulations, and Dave Gatherum looked like he was trying to beat Russ Kowalchuk's speed record, getting up the ice to pat Andy on the back.

UNDER HIS ARM

Speaking of Kowalchuk, he was proudly wearing the alternate captain's insignia on his sweater on Friday. Let me tell you of the last time he wore the "A". Instead of pasting it on the front, for all to see, he wore it under his arm.

He was having himself a ball, questioning numerous decisions of the officials until they were on the point of throwing him out of the game for unauthorized talking. At this point, Russ would throw his left arm in the air in a saluting gesture and display his badge of authority tucked under his arm-pit. What a character!

Friday and Saturday games were close and in both cases the outcome was in doubt until the last moment. The Packers were definitely not at their best, but the games were interesting to watch.

Friday's game would have been more interesting had the referee not called a rather cheap penalty in the closing minutes. Obviously, Hryciuk had intended to pull his goalie, but the penalty put an end to that idea. However, it was an infraction, even though a small one considering what had gone on before, but the referee is boss.

Congratulations to the Kamloops playing-coach on setting a new OSHL scoring record. Could not have happened to a nicer guy than Billy Hryciuk.

We hope to have some fine between-period entertainment this week. Johnale Gartrell and his boys will be coming back, and on Friday you will have the pleasure of watching a local group of costumed Japanese dancers.

REMEMBER WHEN . . .

Britain, with Winnipeg's Jimmy Foster in goal, rocked the hockey world by defeating Canada 2-1 to win the Winter Olympics hockey title 23 years ago today at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany. In the series that started in 1924, this was Canada's only loss until Russia won in 1936 in Italy, with the U.S. second and Canada third.

WORLD RECORD IN QUESTION

"To be, or not to be?" That is the question being asked about John Thomas' record-breaking indoor high jump, seven feet even. Thomas, a 17-year-old freshman at Boston University, out-jumped Charlie Dumas, first outdoor seven foot champion in a tense duel at Millrose Gardens in New York before more than 15,000 people. However, the bar was not measured following the jump in accordance with A.A.U. rules, and record may not stand.

Stamps Back In Win Slot, Have 10-Point Pad In WHL

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Calgary Stampede continued their winning ways in the Western Hockey League Tuesday night with a 4-3 win over visiting Winnipeg Warriors.

It was Calgary's eighth consecutive win over the Warriors this season and moved them 10 points ahead of second-placed Edmonton Flyers in the prairie division. Seattle Totems maintained their 10-point lead over second-placed Vancouver Canucks on the coast, with a 1-0 overtime tie against the Canucks in Vancouver.

New Westminster Royals beat Edmonton 3-2 in Edmonton. Calgary's win saw Eddie Dorohy score three goals to increase his individual scoring rate with 87 points. Calgary's other scorer was Lou Jankowski.

Warrior scorers were Warren Hynes, with two, and Barrie Ross. Warriors' loss kept them a third place on the prairies, a point ahead of last place Saskatoon Quakers, who were idle Tuesday.

At Vancouver, the Totems and Canucks battled for more than 51 minutes without scoring. Then Don Chiupka put Totems ahead at 11:43 of the third period.

A late goal by Les Lilley evened the score and the clubs fought through the overtime period without registering. Goyle Fielder, who assisted on Chiupka's goal, moved to within seven points of Dorohy.

A Score Board? Three Bags Full

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees will install a $300,000 scoreboard at Yankee Stadium in time for the 1959 season opener. The board will be 113 feet wide and 45 feet high, all controlled electronically and convertible to football.

There will be a changeable message area of seven lines with eight letters to the line at the bottom of a 75-foot centre tower. Information can be flashed from the press box to the fans at a moment's notice.

The board contains 11,210 lamps, enough to light up a small town, with a total wattage of 115,000. There will be 619,000 feet of electric cable in the 25-ton structure.

British Yachters Emulate The U.S.

LONDON (AP) — British yachtsmen may adopt an attitude of "if you can't lick 'em, join 'em," in new plans aimed at winning the America's Cup from the United States.

Four of the wealthier dinedards are considering building four 12-metre yachts. The four would compete against each other for the right to challenge the U.S. in 1961.

If the plan sounds familiar, it is. It's the same planning and training procedure the U.S. used in its 16th defence of the cup last year.

Hryciuk Still Leading In OSHL's Point Race

PENTICTON (CP) — Fleet Billy Hryciuk, Kamloops Chiefs play-lining coach, continues to show his heels to the remainder of the league and zoomed to a 23-point lead in the Okanagan Senior Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Statistics released Tuesday credit the fleet winger with 40 goals, 66 assists and 115 points—all league highs.

Twenty-three points back is teammate Gerry Prince who has 33 goals and 59 assists, good for 92 points. Kelowna's rookie center, Gerry Goyer, has down third place with 83 including 43 goals.

Dave Gatherum of the league-leading Kelowna Packers holds a wide edge in the goaltending department, allowing 3.5 goals in 48 games.

The Packers, smarting from brand of hockey, but they were their 4-2 beating at the hands of the Packers, who rode out a two-man deficit day, skated and passed their way twice in the first frame without an 8-2 victory, that wound up damage, and were forced to kill the V's Kelowna appearances in off a total of 11 minor penalties league play. Both clubs are in the game to four for Penticton to start the semi-finals ton.

next Wednesday night in Kelowna.

Paced by the two-goal effort of Russ Kowalchuk, the Packers served their second penalty of turned on the steam, passing the game, and it was 17:54 before beautifully, and singles were added. Middleton knotted the score as ded from the sticks of Mike Durban, Jim Middleton, Bob Bergeron, Moe Young, Greg Jablonski and Bugs Jones.

PASSING DISPLAY

One of the highlights of the evening was the click-passing display between centre Clare Wakshinski and defence man Bob Bergeron. Bergeron, usually more noted for his defensive tactics, walked right in with Wakshinski in a dazzling display and finished off with a neat forhand wrist-watsover, right by goalie Don Moog.

Brian Roche and Greg Jablonski, who weren't in the line-up Monday night, were both back and flying, with Jablonski delivering some bone-crushing checking as well as crisp offensive work.

Goalie Dave Gatherum looked rather uncomfortable on the first goal when he caught the puck, juggled it and dropped it into the net, but he tightened up and shut them out for 48 minutes and eight seconds before Yogi Kraeger rifled a screened shot in from 15 feet. Kraeger and Jim Fair-

Royal Yacht Britannia Just Like Spoiled Child

By STEWART MACLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The Royal yacht Britannia, in the eyes of hardened seamen, must seem like a spoiled child.

Since her birth five years ago the Britannia has enjoyed a thoroughly pampered life. She gets regular beauty treatments from bow to stern, she doesn't associate with other naval ships, and she gets a complete checkup after every major voyage. Furthermore, her captain is a vice-admiral.

Among the sea-cruised navy vessels at the Portsmouth base the trim, blue-hulled Britannia stands out like a beauty queen in a lumber camp.

The 5,700-ton yacht, which this summer carries the Queen and Prince Philip up the St. Lawrence Seaway, has all the best qualities of a warship, liner, hospital ship and hotel. These virtues are topped off with the services of 261 hand-picked crew members, the pride of the British Navy.

FLAW FREE

She is just about the slickest ship afloat. "The Britannia can't afford to have flaws," says an admiralty spokesman. "And she hasn't got any."

The navy, which operates the Britannia through its royal yacht service, takes great pains to see that no flaws occur. The yacht gets the best of everything.

Her captain is Vice-Admiral Peter Dawnay, flag officer royal yachts, who is the only flag officer in the navy to command a ship. Under him are 20 top-flight officers, all between commander and sub-lieutenant, and 250 ratings.

These crew members are expected to set an example for the whole navy, both on and off the ship. They must not shout aboard the Britannia; they must be perfectly dressed—regular navy uniforms are worn with a Royal Yacht flash on the right arm; they are discouraged from running on the decks, ratings must wear rubber-soled shoes to eliminate unnecessary noise.

Anyone falling below these standards would be asked to "leave at the first opportunity," but this has never happened. The Britannia is the only ship in the Royal Navy never to have a demerit.

POPULAR ASSIGNMENT

Although life on this ship is far from easy, there is a long list of volunteers waiting to get Royal Yacht on their cap bands. Officers normally serve a two-year term, with an opportunity for extensions. Ratings, chosen by the officers, are eligible for permanent royal yacht service, with an extra shilling a day, after a one-year probation.

But because of the limited scope for promotion on such a small ship many of the ratings revert to general service when they become due for a new rank.

The navy says life on the Britannia differs little from, say, a modern cruiser. The crew members have regular navy hammocks, they eat regular navy food, and get their daily ration of rum plus a pint of beer. But there are some differences. For instance, the ship must be spotless.

The 412-foot hull must be touched up regularly with blue-bottle paint. The 5½-inch strip down both sides needs constant care. The white paint on the superstructure has to be immaculate. The buff funnel and masts need brightening up, and the varnished decks need a lot of cleaning.

The royal coat of arms on the Britannia's clipper-type bow is kept gleaming, just like the royal cypher on the cruiser-like stern. The surgeon and his two assistants, along with several technicians, must keep the operating theatre, x-ray room, physiotherapy and dental departments in top shape. The same goes for the carpenters, electricians and machinists in their well-equipped shops.

CANADIANS ABOARD

When the Britannia heads for Canada in June, 17 Canadian sailors will be aboard—six already are among the crew—and these temporary additions will face the same heavy chores as all the rest. Some will work in the modern galley, others will get a full share of the never-ending cleaning duties, and some will get a crack at the instrument-filled operations rooms.

The only place that won't concern them is the royal residence in the aft section. When members of the Royal Family come aboard, that section becomes a self-sufficient unit, occupied and operated by the household staff.

About 25 staff cabins, which stack up well against first-class suites on a liner, are occupied by cooks, servants, footmen, hairdressers, secretaries, ladies-in-waiting and equestrians. They look after everything within the plush, pastel-colored royal suites, including the movie theatre, 32-seat dining room, various drawing rooms and sun decks.

This is the area that would be turned into sick-bays if war broke out and the Britannia served its alternative role as a hospital ship.

On the bridge and in the navigation room, the 42,000,000 BRT of 16: Larsen, Behind the Liaison; Raymond, England's on the anvil! Harrington, The Harrington family; Ross, Journey of an American.

Traditional European Game Of Tax Dodging Irks France

By MORTON VON DUYKE

PARIS (Reuters) — The traditional European pastime of tax dodging is threatened by a new French plan.

The plan, brain child of Finance Minister Antoine Pinay, banks on human nature.

It is this: Frenchmen in future will be able to find out how much tax their neighbors pay, and what tax exemptions they are granted.

So if Jacques thinks Pierre is cheating the tax man, all he has to do is walk into his local tax office to confirm the details—or maybe tell the tax man about it.

Pinay's plan is part of a whole series of reforms calculated to put France's financial house in order. France must pay its way in the world and every Frenchman must pay his share of the bill, Pinay reasons.

CAN'T HIDE YACHT

Income tax in France is paid annually in a lump sum, not on a pay-as-you-go basis. It is an open secret that many tax returns bear no relation to taxpayers' incomes or ways of life.

But under the Fifth Republic of President de Gaulle, the tax collectors have a bold weapon against fraud — tax assessment based on "external signs" of wealth.

This means that if a man owns an expensive car, yacht or a luxurious apartment staffed by servants, and still declares a low or middle-range income, the tax man will soak him.

Under another bold decree, wholesalers and producers will have to show the tax man separate accounts of their deliveries to individual retailers.

Herein lies another problem. France's tax troubles are aggravated by the high proportion of small retailers and farmers living off a few acres.

Since Napoleon declared that England was a "nation of shopkeepers," the wheel has turned a full cycle. In France today there is one retailer for every 48 inhabitants, compared with one for 89 in Britain.

A smaller but important part of the evasion problem is the national housing shortage and rent control system.

Some people pay ridiculously low rents, but have to slip enormous sums "under the table" to the landlord. This money the government never sees.

Expensive dodging Tax dodging today is estimated to cost France the equivalent of almost $2,000,000,000 annually—enough to cover this year's estimated budget deficit.

Tax evasion has forced France to implement the highest indirect taxation in Western Europe. But if Pinay's new "snooping" tactics have any real effect, these taxes may be reduced.

Whatever the public reaction to the new measures, tax men are hoping it won't be as violent as what happened in the Aude department of southwestern France during the height of the Pique anti-tax political movement two years ago. Someone then bombed a local tax office.

Tunisians Make War On Paternalism

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

TUNIS (AP) — This former French protectorate, now the independent republic of Tunisia, has declared war on what is known here as paternalism.

In practice this means a continuing, sometimes reckless effort to assert independence, particularly toward France.

Among the recent measures was the decision of the Tunisian government to refuse to follow France's currency devaluation, despite Tunisia's membership in the franc zone.

Thus the Tunisian franc — or dinar according to the latest nomenclature — is supposed to be 17 per cent stronger than the French currency.

OFFENSIVE PHRASE

The result is bound to be a revision of the country's foreign trade, 70 per cent of which has been with France.

But national pride was preserved. "They didn't even bother to consult us before their devaluation," complained a Tunisian minister.

"They didn't even bother" is the phrase frequently repeated by Tunisian officials when they talk of France. Pride means a lot to this Arab country.

The present cold war between France and Tunisia began some years back when the Tunisians proclaimed open support of Algerian nationalists waging their war against France in neighboring Algeria.

ROYAL YACHT BRITANNIA Just like spoiled child

By STEWART MACLEOD Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The Royal yacht Britannia, in the eyes of hardened seamen, must seem like a spoiled child.

Since her birth five years ago the Britannia has enjoyed a thoroughly pampered life. She gets regular beauty treatments from bow to stern, she doesn't associate with other naval ships, and she gets a complete checkup after every major voyage. Furthermore, her captain is a vice-admiral.

Among the sea-cruised navy vessels at the Portsmouth base the trim, blue-hulled Britannia stands out like a beauty queen in a lumber camp.

The 5,700-ton yacht, which this summer carries the Queen and Prince Philip up the St. Lawrence Seaway, has all the best qualities of a warship, liner, hospital ship and hotel. These virtues are topped off with the services of 261 hand-picked crew members, the pride of the British Navy.

She is just about the slickest ship afloat. "The Britannia can't afford to have flaws," says an admiralty spokesman. "And she hasn't got any."

The navy, which operates the Britannia through its royal yacht service, takes great pains to see that no flaws occur. The yacht gets the best of everything.

Her captain is Vice-Admiral Peter Dawnay, flag officer royal yachts, who is the only flag officer in the navy to command a ship. Under him are 20 top-flight officers, all between commander and sub-lieutenant, and 250 ratings.

These crew members are expected to set an example for the whole navy, both on and off the ship. They must not shout aboard the Britannia; they must be perfectly dressed—regular navy uniforms are worn with a Royal Yacht flash on the right arm; they are discouraged from running on the decks, ratings must wear rubber-soled shoes to eliminate unnecessary noise.

Anyone falling below these standards would be asked to "leave at the first opportunity," but this has never happened. The Britannia is the only ship in the Royal Navy never to have a demerit.

Although life on this ship is far from easy, there is a long list of volunteers waiting to get Royal Yacht on their cap bands. Officers normally serve a two-year term, with an opportunity for extensions. Ratings, chosen by the officers, are eligible for permanent royal yacht service, with an extra shilling a day, after a one-year probation.

But because of the limited scope for promotion on such a small ship many of the ratings revert to general service when they become due for a new rank.

The navy says life on the Britannia differs little from, say, a modern cruiser. The crew members have regular navy hammocks, they eat regular navy food, and get their daily ration of rum plus a pint of beer. But there are some differences. For instance, the ship must be spotless.

The 412-foot hull must be touched up regularly with blue-bottle paint. The 5½-inch strip down both sides needs constant care. The white paint on the superstructure has to be immaculate. The buff funnel and masts need brightening up, and the varnished decks need a lot of cleaning.

The royal coat of arms on the Britannia's clipper-type bow is kept gleaming, just like the royal cypher on the cruiser-like stern. The surgeon and his two assistants, along with several technicians, must keep the operating theatre, x-ray room, physiotherapy and dental departments in top shape. The same goes for the carpenters, electricians and machinists in their well-equipped shops.

When the Britannia heads for Canada in June, 17 Canadian sailors will be aboard—six already are among the crew—and these temporary additions will face the same heavy chores as all the rest. Some will work in the modern galley, others will get a full share of the never-ending cleaning duties, and some will get a crack at the instrument-filled operations rooms.

The only place that won't concern them is the royal residence in the aft section. When members of the Royal Family come aboard, that section becomes a self-sufficient unit, occupied and operated by the household staff.

About 25 staff cabins, which stack up well against first-class suites on a liner, are occupied by cooks, servants, footmen, hairdressers, secretaries, ladies-in-waiting and equestrians. They look after everything within the plush, pastel-colored royal suites, including the movie theatre, 32-seat dining room, various drawing rooms and sun decks.

This is the area that would be turned into sick-bays if war broke out and the Britannia served its alternative role as a hospital ship.

Royal City Mayor Waited In Vain For Complaints

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—Mayor Beth Woods wasn't disappointed when her "complaint day" turned out to be a flop.

The first woman mayor of New Westminster initiated complaint day to allow voters with grievances to discuss their troubles in a chatty atmosphere, rather than the formality of a council meeting.

"I expect we'll be swamped," she said as she prepared to face complainers from among this city's 31,500 inhabitants on the first complaint day recently.

Then she marched into a committee room—to meet three reporters, two photographers and not a single complaining citizen.

"I guess this means that our city hall staff handles every complaint satisfactorily, or we're the happiest city in Canada," Mayor Woods said.

Two hours later, however, two residents came. In all, six eventually showed up.

"It's a good thing that they can come and talk," said the mayor, "and it's a good sign that they that all interested be present, as the question of the formation of a possible Square Dance Club may be discussed."

OKANAGAN MISSION

OKANAGAN MISSION — Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Wilnot have moved into their new home on Hobson Road.

The smorgasbord supper put on by the Guilds of St. Andrew's Church on Friday was a great success. After an excellent supper card games were enjoyed. Winners in progressive bridge were: high scores, Miss J. Willett, Mr. V. N. Andreev. Low scores Mrs. J. W. Bell, Mr. Jack Bell. Winners in progressive whist were: high score Mr. Peter Allen, Mrs. Hindle. Low scores, Mr. George Watt, Mrs. Peter Allen.

An evening of card games is being sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Community Hall on Saturday, February 28. The evening will start at 8 p.m. at the Okanagan Mission Community Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Bruce Smith with Jennifer and Stephanie go by car to Vancouver on Sunday, Feb. 17 they will fly to Hawaii where they will enjoy a holiday.

The regular square dance session will be held at the Community Hall on Thursday evening. It is especially requested that all interested be present, as the question of the formation of a possible Square Dance Club may be discussed.

BEAUTIFUL BOWED BLOUSE

Tuck-in or overblouse—whatever the choice of the shopper, the stores are ready for her. Roda Lee does a very feminine tuck-in blouse using a light and lacy fern print with a knowing hand, and tying up the whole job with a butterfly bow. A row of white pearl buttons picks up the bright white of the print. It's good with a suit, a separate skirt or with its own matched silken skirt.

PEACHLAND

PEACHLAND — Mr. and Mrs. Gary Topham with their two boys, Randy and Brian, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Don Topham from Vancouver for the weekend, returning to the coast on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Clements have arrived from Vancouver for a holiday to be spent visiting friends and relatives in the district.

Mrs. Steve Scammell is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Blower, from her home in White Rock, and will be taking part in the Peachland Ladies' bonspiel, being staged at the end of this week.

Representing the Ladies' Curling Club at the Ponticent bonspiel at the weekend were two rinks, one skipped by Mrs. Millie Topham, the other skipped by Mrs. Peg Whinton.

WINFIELD

WINFIELD — Ladies of St. Edward's Catholic Church held a home cooking and bake sale in the window of O. L. Jones Store on Saturday. It was a very successful affair, and the sum of $70 was raised.

The following ladies worked at the stall: Mrs. Otto Holitzki, Mrs. Frank Holitzki, Mrs. F. Westen, Mrs. L. Tessier, Mrs. L. Heber, and Mrs. F. Ratcliffe.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Teenager Deplores Lurid Films That Bring Out "Wolf" In Beau

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Can anything be done about the present movie situation? Such Barod films as "And God Created Woman" should be either left in France or tagged "for adults only." After seeing this film with my normally well-behaved boyfriend, I found him changed into a wolf-type character.

Why are teenagers allowed to see films that arouse emotions that we aren't strong enough to manage, maturely? I was totally unprepared for what I saw on the screen.

It seems to me that French films threaten to take over American theatres. American movie makers are either going to have to lower their standards to the French level or go broke.

Maybe I am old-fashioned. If so, please straighten me out. But I don't see how such films as "The Case of Dr. Laurent" (another French film) are going to keep the illegitimate birth rate down. Please don't publish my name, or I will be marked a square in our crowd. I am just 16. C. C.

AMERICANS LOSING THEIR SENSIBILITY?

Dear C. C.: A number of years ago—15 at least—David Cohn, savvy Southern critic of 20th century American manners, and morals, wrote a book titled "Love in America."

The gist of his message to Americans, even then, was that our moral sensibilities were becoming so calloused by routine tolerance of the base and vulgar, that we no longer knew when the humanity in us was being insulted.

As a minor example, he cited crassly immodest advertising copy (his opinion) then being used in street car placards, to promote the sale of women's brassieres.

He remarked the degrading effect of that kind of sales slugging on the mass mind; and especially the mind of the young. He deplored it as incalculably bad; immeasurably sad. He suggested that we were becoming so accustomed to gross exploitation of sensuality, as a marketing device of our times, that we no longer realized what was going on in this respect; or where we stood; or what the normal range of truly human values are.

He suggested furthermore that American women were failing to civilize American men. And this is woman's function in life, to civilize man, he said. The only antidote to the decadent trend, that he could foresee, was that maybe the American man would waken to the peril, rouse himself and boldly take the lead, in trying to civilize the American woman—and thus save himself, along with her.

Well, here we are, 15 years later: with your SOS to prove Mr. Cohn's point. As for what to do about sex-shocker films, if you have a sense of discrimination, it is easy enough to stay away from them. Nobody forces you to go.

According to the mores of your crowd, I am happy to rate as a square, along with you—if conscientious objections to the Barod-type film makes the difference between square, and other shapes of consciousness. M. H.

FORMAL WORDING PROMPTS QUESTIONS

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Can you tell me, does "full dress" refer to a costume party? True or false? And when an invitation says R.S.V.P. does it require an answer? True or false? F. V.

DEAR F. V.: Full dress is another term for formal dress, i.e., white tie and tails (so-called) for men, and low-necked floor length gowns worn with long white gloves, by ladies, for evening. Or in a case of day time full dress, as at a grand wedding, men wear cutaway coat, striped pants, proper vest and cravat; and ladies wear fine gowns (not black) in elegant fabric, with picture hats (large or small) and the right gloves.

I should think "fancy dress" would indicate a costume party. When an invitation says R.S.V.P. it means "answer, if you please."

The hostess wants to know who's coming, to make provisions according to the number expected. M. H.

Dan Cupid's Arrow Hits Young In Heart

BRANDON (CP)—"You're just as young as you feel," says 86-year-old Alfred Taylor who takes 72-year-old Matilda Cooper as his bride in a Valentine's Day ceremony Saturday at the Fairview Senior Citizens' Home, where they both live.

The couple met last October and their courtship flowered with a proposal by Mr. Taylor two weeks ago.

Said Mrs. Cooper, a widow of 11 years: "I didn't decide right away—you don't get swept off your feet at my age."

Mr. Taylor, twice married previously, said in an interview Monday: "Some people think I'm crazy but I think it's all right. Matilda needs someone to take care of her and I'm strong and well."

After the wedding, the couple will move to the section of the home where married couples reside.

EAST KELOWNA

EAST KELOWNA — Husbands were invited guests when members of the East Kelowna Women's Institute held the annual supper in the Community Hall.

Grace was said by R. A. Wilmeyer, Bridge, whist and cribbage followed the very enjoyable repast. Late refreshments were served during the social period. Conveners were Mrs. E. Steinke and Mrs. G. MacDonnell.

Visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Evans, was Gerald Goddard of Winnipeg, who is a brother of Mrs. Evans.

Relatives and friends were entertained in the community hall Saturday when Mr. and Mrs. Paul Holitzki celebrated their silver wedding anniversary. A delightful supper was served to about 70 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Holitzki were presented with some lovely gifts and the evening finished with dancing.

Residents of the district, heard of the death of Lawrence J. Kelly with deep regret. The sympathy of all is extended to Mrs. Kelly and her family.

Mr. and Mrs. Marlow Hicks have returned from a visit to Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. George Porter have as their guests, Mrs. W. A. Stevenson of Kelowna.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Holitzki with their little son Robert, left the early part of the week for Vancouver, where Robert will undergo medical treatment.

Amateur Bank Robbers Sometimes Succeed Where Professionals Fail

By BERNARD GAVZER

NEW YORK (AP)—The modern bank is a formidable institution designed to thwart or survive panic, fire, depression, inflation, deflation, embezzlers, forgers, cheque-kickers, safe-crackers, and holdup experts with the skill of a Dillinger.

But it is sometimes a pushover for the new - style robber—the lone, unimaginative, untutored amateur pulling his first and perhaps only holdup.

He is the neophyte who does things that would make a professional shudder.

He generally commits his crime when the bank is crowded, meaning there are more people who might stop him. He patiently stands in line with other customers, waiting his turn at the teller's cage, and with each passing minute exposes himself to possible suspicion.

He presents a threatening note saying he's armed with a pistol, or acid or nitroglycerin and usually leaves it behind—providing what could be an important clue. Often he disdains disguise or concealment, such as a mask.

BIG RISK, SMALL TAKE
And he takes his risks for relatively small reward. The total of bank robberies committed by lone wolves shows that 18 got no loot. Some of them scarcely held the money for 10 minutes before being nabbed. No self-respecting professional would hit a bank without every intention of cleaning it out.

But amateur or pro, the lone operator is responsible for at least seven out of 10 U.S. bank robberies. FBI figures show there were 416 bank robberies during 1958, compared with 81 in 1946, and 322 were engineered by single bandits. Eleven were women.

How many of those who got away were amateurs is a matter of speculation. But of the 197 who were arrested last year, 46 had no previous criminal record and a number of others a record of only minor offences.

HARD TO RUN DOWN
Oddly, the amateur's very amateurishness, which constantly puts him in jeopardy, also makes him hard to run down once he makes his getaway.

"The amateur," in the words of one FBI expert, "establishes no modus operandi in the way of a professional, who usually sets some identifiable pattern. Also, the amateur may never have committed another crime, nor venture into it after the first attempt. A professional generally has been in the hands of the law at one time or another and we frequently can get a line on his activities through informants."

The role of the teller has been the subject of much discussion. Theoretically, the outflow of money could be stopped at the teller's window if the teller refused to fork over. But the experts' advice to the teller is: Don't be a hero. Resistance might trigger some drastic and fatal action by the robber.

MANY ALARM DEVICES
Among the alarm devices and mechanisms in use are money traps that send money flying into a safe when a teller is taking money from his drawer. There are hidden cameras to record the entire scene. There are hidden jets to spray tear-gas. There are time-locks on vaults that keep the doors shut for a preset time even if the correct combination is used and there are vault combinations that send secret alarms at the same time the door is opened. There are electric eyes and other sensitive electronic devices to safeguard the premises when the bank is closed.

But this imposing array seems to be ineffective against the amateur bandit aiming for the teller. "You hear people suggesting that maybe the teller could set a secret alarm that would immediately lock all the doors," says an alarm-system expert. "Technically, we can do that. But how lets to Sears workers, a company regard as part of warehouse or 'have nothing to go a from membership in the teamsters."

"Sears management intends to make certain," he said, "that all employees fully understand their legal rights, and that they are fully familiar with the facts and issues involved."

Sears sales during its 1958 fiscal year reached a record of nearly $4,000,000,000. The company says only about 13,500 of its employees, or about seven per cent, how are covered by union agreements.

INVOLVED IN SCANDAL
Sears is a firm that, according to U.S. Senate rackety investigating committee testimony, employed Nathan W. Shefferman of Chicago as a labor relations consultant. It was charged at hearings last year that Shefferman's main task was to keep unions out of Sears.

It was also alleged in the hearings that Shefferman received

Muscovites Complain Video Medium Both Faulty, Dull

By G. I. RATZIN

Moscow (Reuters)—While Soviet engineers plan an early start on the construction of Moscow's new television centre, the medium seems to be suffering from growing pains. There are widespread complaints from viewers about faulty sets and dull programs.

The new centre, which is to have the highest transmission tower in Europe, will improve reception and widen the range of the two Moscow channels.

Under the Soviet seven-year plan the aim is to increase the number of sets in use from the present 2,500,000 to about 12,500,000 by 1965. Because of overcrowded housing conditions, the total number of viewers is many times greater than the number of sets in use.

But the customers are not satisfied with the quality of the receivers now available to them in the stores. More than half of them need some form of repair so much attention in the press 60 miles.

transmitted direct from the courtroom, so that the young criminals could be held up as examples of what bad behaviour can do.

Moscow has two television channels, but one is only on the air in the evenings for about 7 o'clock and many of its programs consist of repeats from the other channel.

This other also operates mainly in the evenings, apart from such occasions as the May Day and Nov. 7 military parades, important political and international sports events, and a few films for children during the school holidays.

ASK MORE INTERVIEWS

A group of Moscow factory workers recently suggested afternoon programs, including repeats of the previous evening's shows, for workers on the night shift. Other letters ask for more live broadcasts in which the man-in-the-street is interviewed at his work or in the stores.

The new Moscow television centre, to be situated on a western part of the city, will be built of ferro-concrete to a height of 1,600 feet. It will guarantee reception over a radius of about 60 miles.

Express elevators will take visitors up to two observation platforms at the 1,300-foot level. A new cable under construction will link the Soviet capital with major cities in eastern Europe, opening up opportunities for television exchanges.

EXPANDING SYSTEM

About 60 television transmitting stations now are scattered over the Soviet Union. By 1965 the number of stations will have grown to about 150 and all the most densely populated regions will be able to receive programs.

24-HOUR A DAY TASK

Running The World's Largest City Demands Combination Of Talents

By KENNETH ISHII

TOKYO (AP)—When Seiichiro Yasui dreams of a soft job, he pictures himself mayor of New York or London or Paris or Rome.

Yasui, you see, is mayor of Tokyo, the world's largest city. Running Tokyo is a 24-hour a day task that demands the combined talents of a carnival barker, financier, art lover, gladiator, and the cast iron stomach of a goat.

And for bossing what may well be the world's most complex metropolis, Yasui receives $305.55 a month and a rent-free residence.

When he took the job in 1946 would normally be expected to at the age of 54. Tokyo lay in ruins. More than 80 per cent of the city had been laid waste by incendiary bombs. Its population had dwindled to 3,400,000.

Now, after three consecutive terms, Yasui can look upon a rebuilt capital, thriving as never before and bursting with 8,810,000 people—a living monument to the determination motivating post-war Japan.

Sitting in his tastefully furnished office, the governor of Tokyo—as he is officially known—puffed on a freshly-lit cigar and recalled:

"In the last 12 years we've done as much reconstruction work as take 40 years. And we've had problems other than bomb damage.

FLOODS, 'QUAKES

"I envy cities like New York, Chicago, Paris, London and Rome because they aren't troubled with earthquakes and floods the way we are. We have to take these calamities into consideration in our planning.

"Also, these cities have relatively stable populations. In Tokyo our planning is difficult because of the tremendous population flux."

As governor, Yasui supervises a complex administration that covers 1,210 square miles, broken up into 24 divisions, eight commissions and 23 ward offices, and employing 135,433 people.

RIDES TRANSIT SYSTEM

Unlike most officials of his rank, Yasui rides Tokyo's municipal transit system when possible.

"I feel it's part of my job to check on the efficiency of Tokyo's buses and street cars. I have found our drivers and conductors among the most courteous in the world."

Yasui's trim, conservatively-dressed figure, neatly-combed hair and grey moustache give him the appearance of a prosperous businessman. Behind his tortoise-shell glasses he is rarely recognized in a crowd.

Hargrove had tried unsuccessfully to adapt his second novel for films. He was determined not to return to New York until he had his first screen credit. So he stayed on and soon was in demand as a TV script writer.

He has written 10 Mavericks and is responsible for much of the show's whimsical quality. Sunday's hilarious Gunslinger satire was his, and he has another killer coming up—a western version of Sheridan's The Rivals. He also did pilot films for 77 Sunset Strip, Colt 45 and the upcoming Johnny Dollar.

ADVERTISER AT WORK!

Advertising can turn the coldest customer into a hot prospect. Throughout the pages of this newspaper you can find many examples of the warm appeal generated by advertising.

But you can't warm up to anything if you're not aware of it. Advertising works overtime to keep you posted on new products and remind you of established brands. It is part of the variety of news in your newspaper.

Advertising is a valuable asset to our economy because it provides the stimulant that makes people buy. As more goods are bought, more and more goods are made—and at lower cost to you. So, you see, advertising really benefits you!

Every day, all across this land of ours, advertising—like the advertising in this newspaper—is doing its part to bring you the good news of more and better products—products that are constantly improving our standard of living.

Advertising works for you!

Opening lead—two of diamonds.
Dear Mr. Becker: I don't know whether or not you can help me with my problem. But I have reached a desperate situation where I am willing to grasp at any straw.
A year ago I was playing in a rubber bridge game and held the South hand. You can imagine my feeling of disappointment when I heard East open the bidding ahead of me. I needed so little to make a small slam or a grand slam—just an ace or two—this bloke who sits on my right and never psyches in his life suddenly says a diamond.

Well, I got to four spades all right, and won the diamond lead with the ace. I led the king of spades. East took it and returned a diamond, which I ruffed and West overruffed.
West then put East in with a heart, and another diamond lead ruined me. It didn't matter whether I trumped high or low—West was bound to get another trump trick and I went down one re-doubled.
That night I couldn't sleep a wink, or the next night, or the next night either. My appetite fell off terribly and I felt plain miserable. This predicament continued for weeks. Finally, I consulted a psychiatrist.
After the usual treatment—it got so I was spending more time on the psychiatrist's couch than I was in bed at home—he told me the cause of my troubles.
I tried a few other skull doctors and they all told me the same thing. They said I shouldn't have trumped the diamond return at trick three, but should have West overruffed the next diamond lead he wouldn't be able to put East in the lead again and I would make the hand.
So I know now what I should have done. But I still can't sleep nights, as I relive this nightmare over and over again.
What occurs to me is that maybe if I see this hand in print it will all go away just like a bad dream. Sincerely yours, John Doe.

South Africa Plans New Policy Toward Native Black

CAPETOWN, South Africa (Reuters) — A new pattern of government policy toward South Africa's 8,000,000 natives is emerging.
It seems to be based broadly on a greater measure of self-rule for day-to-day native affairs. Cornerstone of the system is the Bantu Authorities Act of 1951. This act provides that in the tribal areas or native reserves, tribal authorities will be set up consisting of chiefs and headmen chosen in keeping with tribal tradition but subject to the approval of the government.
Set above these authorities is estimated at between 400 and 500 will be regional authorities and in turn above these will be territorial ethnic authorities each of which will be the governing body of a separate Bantu or African nation.
RESERVE VETO
The membership and actions of these bodies will be subject to considerable powers of veto vested in the minister of Bantu administration and development.
Daniel de Wet Nel, the minister, said recently there will be five or six of these "national" authorities. Their territorial limits have not yet been defined.
Each of these authorities will appoint an envoy to the union government to maintain contact. The government, for its part, will appoint resident commissioners-general in the five or six Bantu capitals.
Efforts will be made by the government to establish links between the urban natives — those working in the cities and towns — and the territorial or ethnic au-

Alcohol Affects Vision Even In Small Doses

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.
I have written a lot about alcohol and a lot about vision problems. Now I would like to combine these two subjects into a single article.
All of you, I am sure, realize that you should not drink and then drive. Alcohol slows your reactions, it numbs your senses. It also hampers your vision.
FAR FROM ROSY
Despite the popular belief, a few cocktails will not make the world look rosy to the drinker. In fact, alcohol is much more likely to give it a grayish coat, according to the Better Vision Institute.
The Institute, which has made a study of such things, reports that a few drinks of liquor create the same effect as placing a grey glass in front of your eyes. This means that you need stronger light to clearly distinguish objects after you have been drinking. And if these objects are only dimly lit, you may not even see many of them at all.
Your ability to differentiate between tones is likely to deteriorate, too.
TEMPORARY TROUBLES
These troubles, of course, are only temporary. But even temporary visual problems can be disastrous to a motorist.
As a group, bus drivers probably are among the best drivers in the nation.
Yet tests applied to a group of experienced bus drivers showed that, after a couple of drinks, some of them were ready to try to drive through a gap which was 14 inches narrower than their buses.
A DEPRESSANT
It was not that the alcohol

made them more willing to take risks; it was that its depressant effect on the central nervous system made them fail to see the danger involved.
The conclusion of this study is that a man's judgement of his own driving ability is impaired when the alcohol concentration in his blood is less than 0.5 milligram per milliliter.
Now that is not very much alcohol. When you are driving, however, it is too much, far too much.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
M.N. My husband takes about 100 aspirins a week. Also, he drinks liquor frequently. What effect will this have on his health?
Answer: Excessive indulgence in both alcohol and aspirin is not conducive to good health.

West Medicine, Magic Compete In Singapore
SINGAPORE (Reuters) — Eastern and western medicine compete in multi-racial Singapore. In the drug stores of Chinatown, shelves full of Western patent medicines are seen beside others filled with ancient Chinese remedies, and many play safe by using both.
The Chinese remedies include: Tiger bones to cure rheumatism; Tortoise shell and deer horn as general restoratives; Deer tail for kidney ailments; Ground pearl powder for bad complexion.
The most popular general tonic among Singapore Chinese is ginseng, a root obtained from the mountain districts of Manchuria, or from Korea. It is taken either by dissolving thin slices under the tongue or by making it into a kind of broth.
